INSPIRING ADDRESS
TO Y. M. C. A. WOMEN

Yesterday afternoon, in spite of the bad weather, there was a large gathering of the members of the Women's Auxiliary of the Y. M. C. A. held at the Association Building, and all present were privileged to listen to one of the most inspiring addresses delivered during the present war. The speaker was Mrs. Gleason, who was sent here from New York, being home on furlough in the interest of Y. M. C. A. work at the front. Mrs. Gleason, whose home is in the middle west, was in Europe at the time of the beginning of the world war, and at once took up her duties as a Y. M. C. A. worker, as near the front as possible. Her husband, who is in service, has been submarine once, so that Mrs. Gleason knows the war from most intimate experience. In spite of hardships and distressing anxiety, Mrs. Gleason is one of the most radiant and young women imaginable. Her wholesome, cheery smile, was itself enough to lighten any American boy who might come under the spell of it, and withal she is a woman of education and resource. "I believe," she said afterward, "that the Freeman reporter, all of which seemed to combine in making her peculiarly fitted to her chosen task. The part of her address which especially interested her audience was the description of the conversion of an old inn, near Nancy, France, which was found in shocking condition, into a clean, pleasant Y. M. C. A. hut, known now to fame as 'The Eagle Hut.' So tremendously popular did the place become that 'four boys' almost demolished the building in their efforts to get within its rather frail walls. Being not far from Verdun, there were hosts of our men who wanted and needed its cheer and comfort, and who found both. After a time it became possible to get what was known as a 'double' hut at the far end of the village and even this large building soon overflowed with boys overjoyed to find women from home. Mrs. Gleason described the work of the canteen, which its giving out of smoked and good food and cheer. She made her descriptions count for far more than usual, because she read sketches from her note book, quoting actual conversations which took place between many of the boys and the workers. The language used in the conversations had not been interpreted beforehand, it would have been hard to understand the war language, 'slang' if you will, being almost a language by itself, which the boys delight in springing on their friends in the hospitals and those women, who understand the boy heart and are the quickest to 'catch on' are undoubtedly the ones who come the closest to the hearts of our soldiers. Mrs. Gleason made it plain that only American women can meet the situation as far as American men are concerned, just as English women alone can minister to the greatest advantage to English soldiers. After listening to Mrs. Gleason every woman present felt that the very best and most she could do to support and assist Y. M. C. A. work on the other side, at this time, would be all too little. Mrs. Gleason expects to return to France in a few days.

BUSINESS SCIENCE SOCIETY.
Kingston Chapter Organized - By Prominent Business Men of City.
The Kingston Chapter of the Business Science Society was organized Friday evening at the first meeting of the society in the Y. M. C. A. and officers were elected for the coming year.
Lloyd S. Wright, manager of the Sheldon Schools, addressed the initial meeting of the society with the first of an interesting series of lectures to be given this winter. The enthusiastic attenders of the lecture were of the city and it is regretted that the society has abandoned the holiday meetings but the chapter, which is to take up the science of business, will meet at the Y. M. C. A. the first and third Thursday of each month beginning January, 1919. The ballots cast unanimously elected the following officers to guide the executive work of the chapter for the coming year: President, Arthur C. Connelly, vice-president, Frank Powley; secretary, C. E. Wonderly.

ROSENDALE.
Rosedale, Dec. 14.—The village people have been busy cleaning their walks of ice and snow.
All Saints' Guild met with Mrs. Wilbur Mohl this week and are busy engaged in preparing for their Christmas sale. Delicious refreshments were served by the hostess.
Private Ambulance in Force, at a base hospital in France, and also at the front driving an ambulance in July when he met with an accident and was severely injured, has recovered. He writes most interesting letters of his experiences.
McLain's moving pictures were shown Tuesday night. The new manager is meeting with success.
The Red Cross ladies will soon call on every one to join in the Christmas roll call. The Spirit of the Red Cross speaks of our sacrifice for the men who suffered in war's red line.
Will some of our big hearted citizens assist in the transportation of the salvage to Kingston for the Red Cross? Inquire at the school house of Miss White, principal.
Otto Mollenhauer, while driving at Tilton Thursday, was accidentally thrown from his sleigh, his horse becoming frightened, dragging him over the ice around and injuring him badly. Edna and George, his children, were also thrown out but not hurt.
A Christmas sale for the benefit of All Saints' Episcopal Church will be held Tuesday, December 17, in the parish house. A fine supper will be eaten. Baked beans, corn, salad, pickles, cold meat, coffee, cake, etc. Supper, 50 cents. Some fine Christmas gifts may tempt the visitors. All come and assist in this worthy cause.

Bank Note.
A rare English bank note is in the possession of a Mr. Tracy Holt. The note is dated 1821 and is the issue of the Bank of England. After the Napoleonic wars England was short of gold and as a temporary expedient the Bank of England put a number of one dollar bank notes into circulation, until the gold reserve was restored. In appearance they closely resemble a twenty-five dollar note and bear no likeness to the English paper money of today.

TURK AND GERMAN.

It beggars a derisive smile to hear that Turkey is going to execute only three men for the murder of a million Armenians, but this is more encouraging than any announcement that has yet come out of Berlin. Germany does not propose to execute or even punish anybody, by way of atonement for all its murders and unspeakable atrocities, and is interested only in whining efforts to secure easier terms from its victors. Turkey does not propose to execute the three men as an act of justice, however, but only with a view to satisfy in some measure civilization's demand and appease the forces thereof that have taken the Ottoman empire in charge. The Turk has no more conscience than the German militarist and is equally disposed to act only in response to the need of self-protection.

Accustomed to murder, sudden death, the sacking of cities and the slaughter of their inhabitants, the Turks are no doubt astonished, as reported, at the quiet and bloodless occupation of Constantinople by the British. When in 1453 the Turks themselves took the Christian city of Byzantium (afterward called Constantinople) they left it, according to Gibbon, "naked and desolate, without a prince or a people," and ever since that has been their method. Yet now comes this strange British army of occupation without spilling an ounce of blood, with no cruelty and no disorder of any kind. The conquerors were content merely to anchor a few ships in the harbor, land a small force, and then proceed to clean up the dirty old town without lifting a soul. The Turks can not understand such forbearance, but the Germans can. This difference merely calls attention to another which is that the savage Turks are really less culpable than the supposedly civilized Germans.

TESTIMONY OF A "TOOL."

Dr. Davis, who for years served as the former Kaiser's dentist, declares in his published account of his experiences in Berlin that Maximilian Harden was secretly in touch with the palace at Potsdam and could always be counted on to serve the imperial purposes at need, the more effectively because of his reputation as a free-tongued editor opposed to the policy of the ruling powers. For this in America, where Harden was years there had been no suspicion of frequently quoted as an example of free and liberal German opinion. But for some time past the Berlin journalists' testimony has been discounted in this country, the New York Sun remarking only the other day in the discussion of another subject that "Prussia subsidized newspapers, even using journalists of supposed independence, like Maximilian Harden, to suit their purposes." All this is brought to mind by the following Associated Press dispatch from London:

Maximilian Harden, editor of the Zeitschrift of Berlin, said to the correspondent of the Express that the impression abroad concerning the former Emperor is false, he himself had suffered too much through the former Emperor to incur a charge of partiality, but it was a fact that William had no personal part in willing the war, but was a mere tool in the hands of the military party, by which he was regarded as a coward. "When the moment for declaring war came, the militaryists were afraid he would refuse to sign the declaration," said Harden. "The former Emperor signed his name, but he was never happier than when going to the luncheon. He ought to have been a cabinet or taken a show on tour. He was a great showman."

It is true that Harden has suffered at the hands of the former Emperor. In 1906, for example, he was kept in jail six months for daring to protect when William II ordered his troops leading to take part in the international relief of the besieged locations at Belgrade to give no quarter, to show no mercy and to make the Chinese remember the Germans for a thousand years as Europe remembered the strange sums of gold. It is also true that the former Emperor was more cruel than tyrant, and he shrank from a world war of uncertain ending when the test came, and that the militaryists had to take measures to silence his attack.

But, however that may be, the world will not accept unreservedly the dictum of Harden who is now known to have played the part of the Kaiser's "tool" on previous occasions. Although he does not hesitate to refer to the former Kaiser in the most contemptuous terms, he nevertheless speaks at an opportune moment and with a manifest desire to soften resentment against his former master and save him from the fate threatening him at the hands of an international court. In other countries opponents of the ruling powers can be forcibly silenced, but they can not be bought. In Germany—it would appear—they can be bought and even employed against the very aims which they publicly represent.

LITTLE LAUGHS.

"My wife is mad because I smoked up her curtains." "Heavens! You must have been hard up for something to smoke."—Boston Transcript.

"Mamma, did papa have to stoop over when you were married?" "What do you mean?" "Aunt Jane says he married beneath him."—Life.

Bacon—"Were you ever tried by a jury?" "Egbert—"Oh, yes; I served on one once, and none of the stubborn men would agree with me."—Yonkers Statesman.

Sales Manager (of Punko Motor Co.)—"Haven't you something nice to say of that car we sold you last fall, Mr. Nutley?" Victim—"For publication?" Sales Manager—"If you don't mind." Victim—"Well, I don't mind saying that it makes walking a pleasure!"—Buffalo Express.

"Why don't you go to a baseball game and let your nerves relax?" "I don't believe it would do me any good," exclaimed young Mrs. Torkins. "I went to a game with Charley once. He got so excited and worried that if he hadn't possessed a wonderful constitution I don't believe he'd ever have gotten over it."—Washington Star.

Poor Pat.

Appropos of the Emperor Charles's letter about "France's just claim to Alsace-Lorraine," former Senator Bailey said:

"Germany and Austria will split up yet. It's only militarism that holds them together. It isn't real affection."

"Germany and Austria in their feeling towards each other remind me of Muff."

"The boss gave Muff two bottles of whisky one Saturday night and said:

"One is for you and one is for your brother Pat."

"Thank ye sorr," says Muff gratefully, and off he set with the two bottles under his arm.

"While he was lighting his pipe a little later, one of the bottles fell and broke into a thousand pieces. Muff looked regretfully at the glass splinters and the little pool of whisky.

"Poor Pat!" he said.—Exchange.

Two Catches.

Senator Calder was talking about the fashions of 1918.

"I know an old fogey of a father," he said, "who took his daughter to task for the shortness of her skirt, the transparency of her stockings, the low cut of her blouse, and so forth, but the girl bit her lips and said:

"Papa, a girl's got to dress like this to catch a husband."

"She is more likely," said the old man, "to catch a cold."—Exchange.

No Wonder.

The late Sir George Alexander said one day to an American correspondent:

"What is the matter with your promising young playwright, Dash?" That was a rattling good play he wrote before the war.

"Dash!" said the correspondent with a sigh. "Dash has written nothing since 1917. His laurels seem faded and hedged."

"Well, no wonder," said Sir George. "He's been resting on them too long."—Exchange.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

I will this day try to live a simple, sincere and serene life; exercising economy in expenditure, carefulness in conversation, diligence in appointed service, fidelity to every trust, and a childlike faith in God.—John Vincent.

GOOD EATING.

When rabbits are easily obtained, as they are in many sections of our country, they are common and not expensive, making a most wholesome meat to add variety and save the shipable meats for our army.

Larded Rabbit Baked in Milk.

Spread over the dressed rabbit thin slices of salt pork. Set in the oven and brown, basting often with milk, dredge with flour and after well browned lower the heat, cooking for an hour longer. When perfectly tender, remove the rabbit and make a gravy with the milk and liquor in the pan. Season well, although the meat should have been seasoned during its cooking. Serve with rice croquettes and currant jelly. The jelly may be placed in a small hollow in the croquette and they may be used as a garnish to the platter of rabbit.

Harepenfeller Rabbit.—Divide the rabbit in serving sized pieces, including the liver and heart, carefully wash and drain. Try out some fat salt pork and add two sliced onions to the fat when yellow, add two tablespoonsful of flour, mix well and add a quart of vegetable broth, a teaspoonful of salt, a bit of bay leaf, a half teaspoonful of pepper, corn, four cloves and the rabbit. Cover and let simmer until the rabbit is tender. Add a tablespoonful of butter, a half cupful of fruit juice or the juice of an orange, two lumps of sugar and a handful of raisins. Cook until well seasoned, the sauce should be spicy, both sweet and sour and not too thick.

Cardinal Peas.—Cook canned peas in a little syrup with a half glass of currant jelly. Cool and serve on oblong pieces of sponge cake, cover the peas with the thickened syrup and top with whipped cream. Sprinkle with almonds shredded.

Ripe olives may be better enjoyed if soaked in olive oil overnight to which a drop of garlic has been added.

Tip fresh garlicks into a cupful of hot water in which an eighth of a teaspoonful of soda has been added. It makes the turkey more brilliant, then chop fine with a sharp knife and sprinkle over the dish to be garnished.

LAST HONORS TO DEAD SOLDIER

Funeral of Private John C. Otto Largely Attended—Full Military Honors to Soldier—Eulogy by Pastor of His Church.

The funeral of John C. Otto was held Sunday afternoon at the Spring Street German Lutheran Church and was largely attended. The dead soldier boy in khaki rested in a flag-draped casket before the flower-banked altar of the church in the presence of a guard of honor from Company M. The large choir of the church rendered two beautiful hymns, conducted by Prof. J. Stumpf. Among the many flower pieces was one most beautiful reproduction of "Old Glory"—a token of love and respect of the comrades of the deceased, sent from Camp Wadsworth. The solemn service was held in German and English, conducted by Rev. A. Schmidt. The cemetery took place at Montrose. The eulogistic address delivered in English by Rev. A. Schmidt reads as follows:

Blessed is that country whose soldiers fight for it and are willing to give the best they have, the best that any man has, their own lives, to preserve it, because they love it. Such an army the United States has always commanded in every crisis of her history. From the war of the Revolution to this late world-war our men followed the flag in battle because they loved that flag and believed in it. They fought bravely for their country and kept the stars all shining in the blue field of the old banner.

When our country entered the great conflict of the nations in Europe and the call to the colors was sounded, thousands of men, the flower of our nation, answered to the call. They left all home, business and kindred; they stepped out from office, store and school; they said farewell, perhaps a final farewell, to their loved ones and marched away ready to fight and die for their country, showered with the cheers and blessings of their friends.

We did not know the staff of which they were made, as we saw them at home, in the quiet of their shops and offices, but that day when they marched away, brave and manly and later when on the battle fields, they moved steadily forward with faces set and lips compressed while the leaden storm fell around them. Then we knew that theirs were hearts of steel and souls of dauntless. Never were braver souls set to do a dangerous work.

Among these brave soldiers, I am proud to say, are our Lutheran boys. They are found in every camp, on every ship and were among the very first to arrive "somewhere in France." They were among the first that went "over the top," and their names are found in the casualty lists. We have given the flower of Lutheran manhood to the country. The number of our congregation has 43 stars among them three golden stars in memory of Harry M. Rieker, Arthur F. Gill and John C. Otto.

The bloody war is now finished, but it has cost so much to bring it to an end. We can count the price of man, of the cannon and the rifles, the ammunition and rations, but count, if you can, what a life is worth, what a blighted home and a broken heart are worth. They cost many hundreds of thousands and tell me how much this war has cost us. The war is over but the supreme sacrifices come home to us in increasing numbers, and thousands of families are called upon to mourn for their slain.

We cannot do a wiser thing than to pay tribute of respect to the departed defenders of the flag and country, and in doing so we show that we are grateful for what they did. We are grateful for the tolls and sacrifices of all the noble of the centuries and the beneficiaries of those who yielded their life on the battlefields. Therefore they are not dead, surely they live. "For he who dies for freedom, lives in every free man's heart."

Savior brave and soldier true. We will find a wreath for you. Where you lie so still and low In the land you guarded so.

We are met today to do honor to a dead soldier, John Christian Otto, son of Louis and Barbara Otto, was born on October 22, 1893, and was baptized and confirmed in our church. He was a baker by trade and was known as an honest, reliable and industrious young man. He entered the service and left Kingston May 27, for Camp Wadsworth, and was a member of the field bakery of the camp.

The commanding officer, Lieut. W. E. Brown, in a letter to the parents of the deceased, writes thus: "John was an excellent soldier. Even though he did not see service abroad, his part in the world war was great. His cheerful disposition and ever eagerness to put forth every effort to make his company the best in the army secured him to every man in the company. Great sorrow has been cast upon us and it is a pity that he was taken such a short time before he would have returned to you." This is indeed a beautiful testimonial of which we may be proud.

Our departed young brother was taken sick with a cold and was taken to the base hospital, where he received the best of care, but all efforts could not save him. He died last Monday of pneumonia. His body was brought home last Thursday by his friend, Corporal Albert Salzmann. He attained the age of 25 years and his death is mourned beside his parents by three brothers, Louis, Ed and Alfred, and one sister, Elsie Otto. He died in the line of duty, and we feel that he gave his life for his country just as bravely as if his death had taken place on a field of battle, and his memory will long be treasured by those who knew and loved him.

The life of our departed soldier has not been accidentally lost but came out under the direction of Him who knew "Return ye children of men, and without whose knowledge and love and actions will nothing come, whatever it may be. We may not understand His ways nor the reasons of His divine providence, but we know and believe that He is just in all His dealings. Therefore, let us not let the Lord by foolish sorrow, but let Him for His grace: Behind a glorious providence: Behind a smiling face.

Amos.

Rhine Long a Boundary.
The first people who took possession of the banks of the Rhine, we are told, were the half-savage Celts, who afterward received the name Gauls. In the height of his glory Caesar crossed the Rhine and shortly afterward took the entire river under his jurisdiction. The river was, in Roman times, a boundary between the province of Gaul and the German tribes, and at a later date and until 1871 was the frontier between Germany and France.

Being a Politician.
You cannot help being a politician. You cannot live for an hour without being a politician. But what a man generally means when he says that he is not a politician I am afraid is this—that he has been all his life enjoying his political privileges and grossly neglecting his political duties.—Rev. Hugh Price Hughes.

RED CROSS NEEDS MORE KNITTING

The Red Cross Society of Ulster county is glad to state that in most lines of work the chapter is making excellent progress toward the filling of its various allotments, with the exception of knitted articles. For some strange reason the idea seems to have gone abroad that we no longer need knitted articles for our men still overseas. This is a big mistake. Warm, knitted garments will be just as much needed in northern France, where it is the same latitude as New Foundland, as ever. And everyone knows how cold all seaport places are in winter, unless in southern climes. Here is a chance for the women who must do their war work at home to continue to serve their country. The Red Cross furnishes yarn and all instructions, so there is not the excuse of expense to keep busy fingers from doing what they can for our soldiers and sailors, who will not be so fortunate as to get home this winter, and there will be many such. Yarn for this knitting may be secured at Red Cross headquarters on Broadway, and it is to be hoped that there will be an immediate call from many women who will be willing to help keep the Ulster county chapter up to its allotment in this as well as in other lines of work. Let's keep the needles flying. Sister Red Cross workers!

MURLEY.
Hurley, Dec. 16.—Mr. and Mrs. George Stewart of Brooklyn came up latter part of last week and after a few days stay, returned to Brooklyn, taking with them Mrs. Albert DuMoind for a winter's visit. Mrs. Wyne is in New York city for a few weeks to look over the Christmas preparations there.

Charles DuMoind had his house full at the week end, Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Siam, A. C. Siam, Mrs. Ironmonger and Mrs. Squires having arrived last Saturday night. On occasion of their visit was the birthday of Uncle Charlie. The party went home Wednesday morning in their own car, leaving behind as a remembrance of their visit and also as a birthday present for Mr. DuMoind, a beautiful fine-toned Victoria with Moind, a beautiful fine-toned Victoria with Moind, a beautiful fine-toned Victoria with Moind.

Miss Beckman, daughter of the Rev. Peter Beckman, spent the week end with Miss Osterhout, who had been one of her father's former parishioners. The many friends of Mr. Wilson, who has been a summer visitor in the village for years, will be interested to know that he has a burial plot in St. Augustine, Florida, for the winter. Mrs. Hasbrouck has received his discharge from the U. S. Army and is now home. The railroad station will henceforth be closed at half past three in the afternoon, as there will be no mail after that hour. Payments on the War Chest pledge cards may now be made to Mr. Durfee or Dr. Nash.

Mrs. Schreyer, who has been ill for a long time, died a few days ago and is to be buried in Hurley cemetery on Saturday afternoon. Miss May Schneider is still visiting with her grandmother, Mrs. Van Sickle. John Stauble is visiting in New York.

The Morning After.
Said the near cynic: "The exercise of the right of suffrage is proper if not indulged in to excess, but the thing that gets fellows into court after election is overexercise."

ONE CENT A WORD ADVS. BRING RESULTS

MAKES NEW FACES FOR MUTILATED SOLDIERS

TYPES OF MASKS

MRS. ANNA COLMAN LADD WORKING ON PORTRAIT MASK

WHEN Aladdin gave new lamps for old he did nothing very wonderful, but when humanity, sympathizing with the misfortunes of others, replaces war-torn, scarred faces with new—when it hides honorable disfigurements gained in the defense of liberty—then there is a story worth while the telling.

This, then, is the story of "New Faces For New." It is a real and pitiable tale. It is a tale of men's glory and woman's devotion; it is a story of sympathy and humanity; of practical Christianity—of unselfish altruism.

Once there began wounds received in battle were considered badges of honor. Men gloried in them; women admired. But that was before the coming of modern armament—of shell and shrapnel—of mines and poison gas. In those other, more humane days, scars of battle wounds were considered sacred. As the late William Shakespeare said: "The battle is scars and never felt a wound."

But things have changed since then. Not that scars are not marks of respect, but some mutilations are so repulsive as to excite horror mixed with pity. Wounds in the face and head leave the ugliest marks. In the present war hundreds and thousands of the men have been torn and mutilated until they scarce resemble human beings. Photographs received to this country show men with their faces torn away, with their lips torn off, with half their face gone.

It is these men who were a problem for their fellow men. They—the mutilated, as the French call them—were the objects of the sympathy of their friends and the greatest public. They were something more tangible than any-

After considerable experimentation Mrs. Ladd hit upon this copper as having sufficient strength. Then she decided to have the base plated with silver to give it a better finish. Next came the method to be employed in fitting the masks. Consultations with surgeons brought to light the fact that nothing could be done with mutilated men until some months after their wounds had healed completely, as the tissues contracted even after complete disincision, had taken place. Eventually a perfected method was evolved. When the muffle had been removed back to health and the tissues were in a normal condition, the muffle was placed upon its exterior surface. If possible she obtains a photograph of the muffle taken before he received the wounds. From the photograph and the plaster cast Mrs. Ladd, guided by her sculptor's art, reconstructs another plaster cast of only those parts which are mutilated. Then a copper mask is made, the thickness of an inch thick. Then comes the first fitting. If the mask so far as finished this properly it is silver plated. Next comes the question of making the mask appear natural. If eyebrows are needed they are inserted into the mask by hair. If eyes are missing altogether then artificial eyes are placed in the mask. When the mask is complete the muffle goes for a final fitting. Mrs. Ladd adjusts the mask or has one of her expert assistants attend to the task. The mask is held in place by "fake" eye glasses and strings or by a wig, the adjusting mechanism being so camouflaged as to be practically invisible. But the work is not yet done. One of the most important operations in its manufacture is in the coloring. Mrs. Ladd takes her palette and with specially prepared pigments colors the mask to match the complexion of the unmutilated part of the face. Then she works and labor of love is done.

Then the muffle walks out of Mrs. Ladd's studio a new man. He is no longer a muffle—an object of horror mingled with pity. He is a human being again, self confident, happy. He no longer dreads to be seen in public. People no longer gaze at him in pity, scarcely able to disguise their aversion. The transformation is complete—at a cost of $20 supplied by the American people and the devotion of an American woman.

The accompanying pictures were taken especially for the American Red Cross that the people of the United States might know of her splendid work in saving human beings for society. Mrs. Ladd may be seen in one picture painting the mask worn by Mr. Caudron, who was mutilated early in the war. The man wearing the glasses was a fine, healthy man, whose lower face was completely shot away. Without the mask he would have been an object of intense horror despite his patriotic sacrifice. The third picture shows an assistant fitting a mask on a muffle the left side of whose face was torn to shreds. The fourth picture shows the shape of various masks.

MANY VACANT SALOON SITES

CLOSEST SHAVE AT END OF FIGHTING

Man Shell Hit Near Hospital on Last Night of Fighting, Giving Ralph Lord Narrowest Escape he has Had.

The following letter was received from Ralph M. Lord, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Lord of 107 Henry street:

Somewhere in France, December 12, 1918.
Just a few words while I have the time, amidst all the excitement of the cessation of hostilities. Last night was as still as a graveyard; not a gun shot nor a shell burst—the quietest night France has known for over four years. Tonight is a day for Jerry to come over and bomb us, but we know he won't so we burn all the lights and cheer that is every where. Everyone wants a smile; there is all kinds of singing, shouting for we know it won't be long before we'll be back to the old U. S. A. I'll leave France to the French with all its mud and filth. I have been having plenty of warm rooms. We have been cited three times and are considered one of the best divisions in France. Perhaps I said myself, that as I was proud of us—with over a hundred days for our lives, we made records and advanced farther than any other divisions—beat the Rainbow away out. Now aren't you proud of us? Of course you are and so are we, for we did a big share to win the war. Although we are only a National Army Division, we have made a record that will go down in history. We are careful of ourselves and keep away from the Spanish flu; hope none of you have it. As for me, I'm the healthiest I've been in my life; you just ought to see me and will probably be before long. Of course we will have to stay here in France until peace is actually signed, but we are long out of the lines tomorrow for a rest. I'm long one that we have well earned, having been "in" since August 31. Where all the big advances and the hardest fighting I tell you more. We took part in all the big drives at Chateau Thierry, Verdun and through the Argonne Forest to the Meuse river and in Lorraine. Dad I have sent it now but bring it with me—probably will come back all loaded down with souvenirs; we all have plenty. We will probably be on the road for some time establishing hospitals. There are sick and they need care as well as others. But then they are cheerful, for we all know the end has come at last. Here is a funny thing—the last night of the war I went over where we were the last three days closer and closer. I sat by the Meuse river when I heard the gun, then the shell and then the scream increased to a roar, and then a crash—came windows a crash of falling masonry. We thought sure we were hit, but in the morning at daylight we found it had landed about twenty feet right behind the hospital building and had thrown stones and dirt all over the building. That was the last shot he fired and it nearly killed the closest "share" I've had since I've been here in France, but it's all over now and there is no more to be made to make us run for cover. Everyone is happy and ready to go home; then comes the big reception, but now, now, will write again as soon as I have the opportunity. Keep well. My love to you all.

RALPH.
"I'll hear or read of a 'star shell' hitting up No-Man's Land? Well here I'm writing the substance which holds the battle powder which makes the light. It's a star in one, too. (Last night Private Ralph M. Lord, 107th Infantry Hospital, 72nd Sanitary Train.)

Alleviates Zecache.
If earache does not occur often possibly home treatment will alleviate the suffering, which is always so severe while it lasts. Wring out hot cloths and apply them to the ear. This often brings quick relief. Or moisten a small piece of cotton, saturated with sweet oil or laudanum, and place it carefully in the ear. This is generally efficacious if the trouble is caused by the hardening of the wax.

Digi
It is seldom that men discover rich mines without digging. Nature commonly lodges her treasures and jewels in rocky ground. If the matter be knotty and the sense lie deep, they must stop and buckle to it, and stick upon it with labor and thought and close contemplation, and not leave it until they have mastered the difficulty and got possession of the truth—Locke.

More Cam's Body Again.
A new chapter to the travels of the dead has been added by the exhumation and reinterment of the body of the former Emperor Maximilian. Napoleon's remains lay for nearly twenty years in St. Helena before removal to the Invalides. The body of Maximilian the Great was in Cuba, his heart in Paris. Christopher Columbus, dead, has traveled almost as far as the great voyager traveled when living.

HERE AND THERE ABOUT THE TOWN

The Stroller Hears Old Time Parties and Weather Discussed—Weather Not Healthy But it is Easy on the Coal Bin.

"This is a kinder funny weather so far," remarked the customer as he glanced on the back page of The Freeman to read the weather report. "When you have lived as long as I have," replied the busy barber, "you will realize that it never pays to knock the weather, for it is the one thing in life that man can't regulate."

"Well, it is funny weather," replied the customer. "I would rather have the weather like it was for the past few days than another winter like last winter," replied the barber, "and speaking of weather reminds me of a little incident of my younger days."

"Shoot," said the customer. "See that little scar on my head," replied the barber, including his head toward the customer. "What's that got to do with the weather?" asked the customer. "I was just showing you it to prove the truthfulness of the incident," explained the barber. "I was a young chap in those days and liked to go to parties and get the prettiest girl there to allow me to escort her home. It didn't seem to me they were the good times now that we used to have at parties when I was a boy. We'd take up the carpet and dance, and then we'd play all the old-fashioned games, and everybody would have a glorious time."

"But to get back to my story. It was a warm and muggy like that of Saturday and I was escorting a girl home from a party. We sat down on her front stoop for a minute to talk over the party when as quick as a flash of light the weather must have dropped forty degrees. Just as the weather turned off cold the girl's kid brother leaned out of the window above the porch with a pitcher of water and turned the pitcher upside down. Instead of wetting us, however, the sudden change in the temperature caused that water to freeze before it fell on us and it formed an icicle that hit me on top of my head and that is where I got the scar."

"Yes," continued the barber, "they say the weather is not healthy but it is mighty easy on the coal bin though."

THE STROLLER

The White Elephant.
A good many persons have, no doubt, got a wrong impression of the Siamese white elephant. He is not pure white, as is generally supposed, but is a sort of Albino among his race. He is a very light gray, but never a pure white color. Outside of this, he is little different from the rest of his race.

Cleaning Seed.

By the use of a partial vacuum the United States department of agriculture has developed a hydrocyanic acid and gas process for fumigating imported seed more rapidly than heretofore.

SOUDEURS HOME
WITH EMPTY SLEEVE

Left Arm Gone and With Body and Face Scarred by Shrapnel, One of the Famous "Whistling Company" Returns.

Few pedestrians or busy Christmas shoppers on Wall street Saturday night noticed that ruddy looking war hero, clad in khaki and wearing the overseas hat and shoes of the fighting infantry of Uncle Sam's army. Few noticed the empty coat sleeve and scarred, but smiling face, representing hard fought for victory on the shell-battered fields of blood-stained Europe. The young man was not looking for admirers or curiosity seekers but just acquainting himself with the scenes of "old times" after a year and one-half of sacrifice for "those he left behind him." Fortunately a former friend of his, a Freeman representative, saw him and after some persuasion drew from him some of his experiences that have placed twenty-two life long scars on his body and has taken from his left arm just below the elbow the hero of this story is Harry Souder of this city, a brother of Mrs. H. G. Hoag, of 197 Washington avenue, with whom he resides. Private Souder returned to the United States less than a week ago arriving in New York from England aboard the Princess of Britain, Tuesday, December 10th. He was immediately taken to the Greenbush store hospital at 18th street and 6th avenue where he is now stationed as a convalescent.

Souder enlisted in June, 1917, joining Company I, 71st Regiment, when they were quartered in the local army and was sent to Camp Wadsworth, Spartanburg, S. C., for training, going overseas May 18th of this year and arriving in Brest, France, on Decoration Day. His regiment was immediately advanced to the Ypres section where they were quartered in dugouts, not to face the Hun until later in the summer. Souder states that in the Ypres section no trenches had been constructed and they fought from shell holes placed there by enemy rockets.

In September Souder's company was sent forward to take part in the thickest of that famous drive, he remaining in the front line until crippled in the legs by Hun machine gun bullets. Showing real "doughboy" pluck he started unassisted to the reserve line but after accomplishing half of the distance, a shrapnel shell exploded, wounding him about the face and body, rendering him practically helpless for further travel without aid from some one. While still conscious and trying to find some way of reaching a dressing station, two stretcher bearers discovered him and started with him for the first aid dugout, but again the enemy "rockets" started to blaze the air, one containing gas and shrapnel, burst nearby, killing both bearers and rendering Souder unconscious.

How he finally did reach the dressing station, Souder was unable to tell but after receiving emergency treatment he was sent to Hospital Base 13, at Boulogne, for an amputation of his left arm and was later removed to Dartford, England, where shrapnel was removed from his head and body.

Today, after spending the last three months in army hospitals, Souder says he is once again very much alive and anxious to resume his duties in the supervisor of tracks office at the West Shore station.

Indian Summer.

Indian summer is the return of genial but it is hot weather after sharp frosts. It is the moment when the door of the vestibule of winter is left standing ajar for a moment to let the light and just a little—not too much—of warmth of departing summer stream in. It is a season without a rival—braver even than the briefest spring, tenderer than the softest summer; it is the promise and the "as of a man's restoration of Eden."

Groat Enthusiasm Over Motor Corps' Dance.

No end of enthusiasm, and that of the docket-buying variety, is being shown over the Christmas night dance to be given by the Women's Motor Corps of this community at the armory. Tickets are selling splendidly and a big crowd is already assured for the dance, and the marvelous poster exhibition which will be one of the notable features of the event. Every night this week members of the Motor Corps will be busy at the armory winding Christmas greens, for it takes yards and yards of such evergreen boughs to decorate the immense hall, and the Motor Corps never does things by halves. If you really want to be "in it" this Christmas, just be sure that you have a ticket for this Christmas dance, and that you are there.

As the poster exhibit will be open to the public for two days, the 25th and 26th, the Motor Corps will give an exhibition drill, regular military drill such as the men give, on Thursday evening, December 26, at the armory. This will be well worth seeing for this drill tomorrow, Tuesday evening, at the armory.

CARRELL MEETS FRIENDS

Camp Dix Comrade and Sanguettes Man Named Decker in France.
Private Frank L. Carrell, writes his mother, Mrs. Hugh Carrell, of No. 160 O'Neil street, this city, as follows:
France, Oct. 25, 1918.

Dear Mother
Just a few lines to let you know that I am still at the same place and am feeling fine. We are having nice weather now and that, along with the good news coming in all the time, keeps a fellow feeling good. There isn't any doubt at all now about the Germans being beaten, and it is only a matter of a short time when they will be in completely and then for home and happiness.
I hear the influenza is causing the sickness over there, but I guess it is all over the world. We had some of it here but since I have been here I haven't heard from any one who has it. I kept myself well decorated up to be on the safe side. We have stores in our barracks now and keep very comfortable. I haven't heard from Mae in a couple of weeks but ought to hear from her this week. I wrote a letter to Mr. Burke for I know he would be tickled to hear from me. I am going to write to Will and Hugh today if I have time. There is so little to write about I hardly know what to say. I met some fellows from Mt. Vernon who were with me at Camp Dix, and we had a great old chat telling about our experiences on the trip. It sure is great to meet somebody you know like that as they are the first ones I met since I landed. I guess we will be near each other from now on so I will have somebody to talk over old times with. We have a fellow in company from Sanguettes that knows Finch, never knew it until last week. He happened to mention Kingston, his name is Decker. I suppose he is the time this letter reaches you. You will be in South Andover and when I write to you then I can write to the whole family in one letter, but I guess you tell them now. I hope so, for I don't want any of them to feel that I am forgetting them, for you know our letters are limited. I will write to you every week for you come first, and I always write to Mae when I write to you.
Well, I think I will close for now. Hoping this letter will find you and Pa and everybody else well and with lots of love to the whole family, I remain, as ever, your loving son,
FRANK.

Remember me to Bill Krum, Quirkie Tucker and all the people in H. E. Private Frank L. Carrell, Co. C, 26th Inf., Amer. Ex. Forces, A. P. O. 713.

CITY BOARDS FILE ANNUAL BUDGETS

With City Clerk Doremus as Required by City Charter—All Boards Ask For Larger Appropriation for 1919.

All of the city boards have filed with City Clerk Doremus at the city hall their proposed budgets for 1919, all calling for large amounts than 1918. The larger amounts asked for are due to the increase in wages, supplies and materials needed to carry on the work of the city.

In September the state asked City Clerk Doremus to send an estimate of the increase in wages in the various city departments caused by the war and war conditions. The city clerk visited every department of the city and compiled a statement which showed that at that time there had been an increase in wages alone to 100 employees of $17,000 a year.

Under the city charter as revised all of the city boards are required to file with the city clerk their estimates of what appropriations they will need to carry on the work during 1919. These estimates are open to public inspection by any taxpayer if desired. Between now and the first of the year Mayor Canfield will carefully go through the appropriations before the final budget is submitted to the common council for action the first of the year.

The largest appropriation asked for is that of the board of public works with a request for $115,000. The police board has asked for $23,000.

The charity board asks for $35,000. The health board asks for $9,000. The civil service board asks for $500.

The fire board asks for $24,000. The general fund needed for city expenses is placed at $10,000 while the salary fund is placed at $15,000. What the city tax rate for 1919 will be cannot be ascertained until the final budget is approved by Mayor Canfield and submitted to the common council and adopted by that body at the annual meeting.

Chinese Logic.

A merchant of Shanghai offered five pounds of tea for $2 and ten pounds for $5. When the tourist told him that was ridiculous, the Chinaman answered that the more a man buys the richer he is, and the richer he is the more he can pay.—Boston Transcript.

The Nation demands strong men—strong women and robust children. Wisdom suggests that every proper means of safeguarding the vital forces and building up of resistance, be utilized.

His Favorite Dish.

A Chinese merchant, being questioned as to his favorite article of food, prefaced his reply by stating that many foreign dishes which we consider appetizing are disgusting to the Chinese. With the way thus prepared, he announced that of all foods he cared most for a stew made of a particular kind of snake, costing from six to eight dollars.
